“ I have known Larry since 2003 when I took over as Anadarko project manager for the former Champlin refinery site. During the ensuing ten years, until he retired, Larry was an invaluable trove of information about the old facility and the work that had taken place during and after its closure. He really helped me in my job and his story telling brightened many a dull work day. Larry had a big heart and was a reliable friend. Even after we both retired, he was still able to raise a chuckle when we compared medical histories and experiences. Unfortunately my wife and I are unable to attend his ceremony but we will continue to think of him and his family. I will miss him a lot. Chris Boyce.
